JUNIOR PROM.

The social event of the school year occurred last Friday evening when the Juniors entertained, in honor of the Seniors, at Gilligan's Hall. The Hall was prettily decorated, the color scheme being along the line of the class colors. The German motto "Immer Hoher," with gold letters on a red back ground decorated the north end of the Hall; while above the raised platform at the south end, the words "Climb Tho' The Path Be Rugged" were conspicuous on a background of green. The lights were made mellow by colored shades and heightened the effect. Superintendent Collins, the High School teachers and representatives from the Junior class constituted the receiving committee. Dancing began at nine. The music by the Military Orchestra was good and the floor in excellent condition. At times the floor was crowded, but every one was happy and scant room was not sufficient to mar the good time. Delicious punch was served throughout the evening. Sixty-four dollars were collected at the door, this amount making it possible for the Juniors to work on a more elaborate scale than in former years when no charge was made. By all who attended, the Junior Prom of 1907 will be remembered with pleasure.

CITY PROPERTY SOLD.

Last Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m. the Board of Public Works opened the bids for the sale of the two houses on the property purchased by the city, formerly owned by Isaac Tuttle and Dana Joslin. There were at least a dozen bidders for one or both of the houses, at various prices but Wm. Daniel's bid of $1,735 was the highest and the houses were sold to him. He is to remove the houses on or before July 1, so as to leave the lot in readiness for the erection of a City Hall. It is understood that Mr. Daniels has several lots on the South Side and expects to move the houses there.

TO HARNESS LITTLE WOLF RIVER.

Oshkosh capitalists have secured options on land at various places along the Little Wolf river and if the reports of experts who have been viewing the waterway, are favorable, the river will be harnessed and power provided for nearby cities. Leander Choate, F. W. Josslyn and Caspar Faust are among those interested.

Until three years ago Mr. Faust was a citizen and property owner of Rhinelander and while here did much toward the promotion of city interests.

ISHPEMING SUPT. OF SCHOOLS DISCOVERS SIMPLER METHOD OF UTILIZING ASHES FOR FUEL.

Last week's issue of the New North contained an article, which explained the process of utilizing coal ashes for fuel, discovered by a Pennsylvania cobbler. The following describes a simpler method, discovered by an Upper Peninsula man:

That ashes mixed with chemicals can be burned with success in furnaces and stoves and at a large saving over the cost of coal has been demonstrated at Ishpeming by tests made by E. J. Scribner, superintendent of schools. While it is not known just what admixture was used by the Pennsylvania cobbler who is reported to have discovered a similar process, it is believed that the compound prepared by Mr. Scribner gives fully as good results.

One part coal is used to three parts ashes. The compound when mixed with water and ashes causes chemical action. When heat is applied the hydrogen and oxygen in the water are released. These unite in different proportions with the oxygen still remaining in the ash mixture, and produce a gas that burns freely.

Mr. Scribner expresses the belief that the compound can be so mixed that ashes will burn without the inclusion of coal. The mixture of the chemicals composing the compound and the water is the work of but a minute or two. The solution is poured over the mixture of coal and ashes, and the "fuel" can be thrown into the furnace wet or dry. Almost every particle of the ashes, the cinders excepted, is consumed. Practical use will be made of the process in Ishpeming schools next winter. The fuel bills of the schools now amount to about $5000 a year. It is believed this can be cut almost in two.—Ironwood Times.

TALK ON BIRDS SATURDAY.

Mrs. Forbes will talk with the children next Saturday morning at 10:30 at the Library about two birds that they can see and hear this month. All children of the 3rd and 4th grades who want to learn about birds are invited to be present.

ANTIGO BADLY DEFEATED.

At the fair grounds last Saturday afternoon the Antigo High School baseball team was defeated by Rhinelander High at a score of eleven to five. At the end of the first inning the score stood three to nothing in favor of Rhinelander. The work of Rhinelander's battery was the feature of the game. The best Antigo could get off O'Mella's delivery was three hits which were so scattered that they did not result in scores. The score of Antigo was made through errors of the Rhinelander team. Our battery succeeded in getting twelve strikeouts and giving no passes. As a whole the team batted strongly and bunched hits on Peters of Antigo. Next Saturday the Rhinelander boys play at Antigo. We hope they will show as much skill as they did at home. The battery was Rhinelander—O'Mella and Vaughan Antigo—Peters and Drade.

DEATH RECALLS A TRAGEDY.

Henry Curran, postmaster of this city for ten years, who died suddenly yesterday from heart disease, was one of the principals in a fatal feud which raged here nineteen years ago and resulted in the killing of Willis W. Hazeltine, on April 3, 1888, as he was coming from a barn opposite the Curran hotel. At least five shots had been fired from a window of the house, and John D. Curran was arrested. Later Henry Curran was charged with complicity. At the trial both were acquitted. His testimony that Hazeltine opened fire. It was alleged that the motive of the shooting was a threat which Hazeltine had made because of trouble over Mrs. Hazeltine. This trouble had culminated some time before in the shooting of Banker A. E. Morse by Hazeltine, who charged him with being intimate with his wife. Hazeltine was acquitted on the ground of emotional insanity. John Curran is still living here.—Stevens Point Journal.

COLDEST APRIL IN 26 YEARS.

The month ending a week ago Tuesday was the coldest April in the last 26 years and within a degree of the coldest April ever experienced, according to the weather bureau. The bureau's report says: "The month was characterized by a succession of cold spells which swept southeastward over the northeast Rocky mountain slope and gradually spread southward and eastward over the entire country east of the Rocky Mountains. The cold was almost continuous except for brief intervals of a day or so of warmer weather and it closed with remarkably low temperatures in the interior valleys and the southwest."

DENTAL PARLORS MOVED.

Some time this month Dr. Keith will move his dental parlors from the present quarters to the rooms over C. D. Bronson's store, which are now undergoing repairs and being remodeled. Dr. Keith's change is occasioned by the needs of the Brown Bros. Lbr. Co., who will use the rooms for offices.

LIBRARY BENEFIT.

Lovers of music will be treated to a song recital by artists of rare ability on May 15, when Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Howard appear here under the auspices of the Woman's Club, at the Congregational Church. Mr. Howard is a tenor of considerable note and Mrs. Howard has a fine contralto voice. Both have sung in this country and Europe and have received flattering press notices. In securing them, the Club is indeed fortunate. Do not fail to hear them. The Kenosha Evening News had the following to say after their appearance in that city: "The climax of fascination in this fine recital was the perfect harmony of voices in the duets. One hesitates to express a preference when all is excellence, but it seemed that the Tuscan Folk Songs, and especially 'A Flight of Clouds' reached the very acme of musical charm."

Prices 50 and 25 cents. Tickets to be had of any member of the Club.

Get the habit of dropping into Sawtell's for your evening smoke.

WAUPACA DEPOT BURNS.

The Wisconsin Central passenger depot was destroyed by fire starting from a spark from a passing train Monday.

It must be a great relief for Waupaca to be rid of such an eye sore, which was a disgrace to the beautiful little city. The building was slightly better than our Soo Station here. Oh, for a like deliverance!

State Capital Notes

Weekly Budget Gathered by Our Special Correspondent at Madison.

Madison.—A meeting of prominent Wisconsin bankers was held here to consider legislation pending of greatest importance to the banking business. The men who gathered here were largely representatives of Wisconsin State Bankers' association, and their interest centers in what is known as the Owen bill, or substitute for senate bill No. 491, which is designed to give trust companies the right to do a general banking business, this right being now withheld under the general banking laws of the state.

It appears that under the present law trust companies are prohibited from doing a general banking business. The substitute for the Owen bill provides that in addition to the powers that trust companies now have they can "receive money on deposit, to be subject to check or to be repaid in such manner and under such terms and with such interest as may be agreed upon." While trust companies in the past have been receiving time and saving deposits, these deposits have not been subject to check. It is now contended by the bankers that the proposed law will give the trust companies all the right to do a general banking business without subjecting them to the banking laws of the taxation levied upon bank capitalization.

In a decision handed down by former Attorney General Sturdevant in August, 1905, it was held that when a trust company engaged in a general banking business it was unlawful. In his annual report Bank Examiner Herg asked for legislation that would more clearly define the powers of trust companies. It is also pointed out that if the bill becomes a law there will be a direct conflict in the manner of taxation, for trust companies, in addition to their real estate actually owned, pay a license fee of $500 upon their capitalization and three per cent upon their net income, while the capital stock of a bank is taxed, as is personal property, at its book or actual value.

The banking law of Wisconsin was amended in 1903, and what is considered an excellent law adopted. While the bankers who are in the city refuse to discuss the detail plans formulated today, it is believed that the Owen bill will be strongly opposed and that a committee will be appointed to resist its enactment.

Holds Statute Is Legal.

In affirming the decision of the lower court in the case of the state of Wisconsin ex rel. David Williams, appellant, against Ole Samuelson, respondent, the supreme court holds that the statute creating the office of county supervisor of assessments is constitutional. The case came from Clark county, where Ole Samuelson is supervisor of assessments. David Williams brought an action to determine the right of Samuelson to perform the duties, alleging that there is no such office in fact. The defendant demurred and the lower court sustained the demurrer. The supreme court holds that Williams, being a taxpayer of the county, had legal capacity to bring the suit, that the office is one that may, under the constitution, be created by the legislature, and that the statute is not invalid because it requires official bonds to be obtained of surety companies. The court also holds that the statute does not violate the right of self-government.

Four New Measures.

Four new bills were introduced. One absolutely prohibits the smoking or showing of any cigarette or cigarette paper in any public place. The penalty is a fine of $25 or imprisonment in the county jail for not to exceed ten days. Another bill prohibits saloons within three-quarters of a mile of the main hall of the state university, or within 50 feet of either side of State street, which is the thoroughfare leading directly from the capitol to the university. A third bill empowers judges of circuit courts to compel managers and directors of corporations to declare and pay dividends to stockholders whenever just and proper. The fourth bill requires the price of each railroad ticket stamped or written on it.

No Senate Sessions Saturday.

The senate went on record against Saturday sessions, reconsidering the action of Monday which provided for sessions on alternate Saturdays. Upon a motion to reconsider, the majority of the senate held to the opinion that business would not be especially expedited. Senator Froemming sounded a note of warning when he objected to the reference of bills, and stated that no adjournment would ever be reached if the practice was continued.

For Popular Election of Senators.

The committee resolution memorializing congress to provide for the election of United States senators by direct vote was ordered engrossed and read a third time by a vote of 47 to 40. The Brockhausen resolution memorializing congress to provide for the election of federal judges by the people provoked considerable discussion and was finally killed. The Bell bill providing for woman's suffrage was recommended for indefinite postponement by the committee on elections.

State Campaign Expenses.

Judge Martin L. Lueck, of Juneau, in accordance with the law, filed a statement in the secretary of state's department declaring that his campaign expenses in the recent judicial election of the Thirtieth circuit were $2,485.67, and Patrick O'Neare, of West Bend, one of the unsuccessful candidates, filed a similar statement declaring that his campaign expenses amounted to $547.66. Former Senator Ernst Norton, of Wausau, filed his statement last week, declaring that he spent $1,946.29.

Martin Bill Concurred In.

The assembly concurred in the Martin bill empowering the state board of control, with the approval of the governor, to parole first-term prisoners who have served at least one-half their sentence and who are not sentenced for life, from the state prison at Waupun. The bill will now go to the governor and it is expected that he will approve it. Heretofore the power to parole prisoners from the state prison has rested entirely with the governor and it has rarely been exercised. The Martin bill is expected to be of especial benefit to persons sent to prison for comparatively short terms or up to about 12 years. It will not benefit persons sentenced for longer terms because the present allowance for good behavior enables them to regain their liberty after serving a little over half their time.

FORBIDS SCHOOL ATHLETICS.

Fond du Lac.—William Wilson, superintendent of the Fond du Lac schools, has issued an order forbidding high school students to participate in any athletic contest. This drastic order is the result of a disturbance at a declamatory contest. The disturbance is said to have been caused by intoxicated students.

McKenzie Bill Killed.

After a lively debate the assembly killed the McKenzie bill providing that the total vote cast for all the candidates for any nomination at a primary election shall be 25 per cent, or more, of the party vote for governor at the last preceding general election in order to enable the nominee to go on the official ballot under the party designation. The Democrats protested that the passage of the bill would practically wipe their party out of existence because it is impossible to get 25 per cent. of the party vote in many localities where there are no contests. A motion by Mr. O'Neill to indefinitely postpone the bill finally prevailed by a vote of 52 to 31.

Capitol to Be of Granite.

Wisconsin's new $5,000,000 capitol will be built of Bethel white granite. This has been definitely decided by the capitol commission. A contract was let to the Woodbury Granite company, of Hartwick, Vt., to furnish and lay the granite, and the necessary papers will be signed as soon as they can be drawn up. Owing to the fact that no Wisconsin granite harmonizes with the Bethel granite and that no bid was submitted for Wisconsin granite, the commission decided to build the entire exterior superstructure of the Bethel granite.

Help Seattle-Yukon Expedition.

Without a dissenting vote the senate passed the bill appropriating $25,000 to the Seattle-Yukon expedition. At the committee hearings it was shown that Wisconsin manufacturers furnish considerable of the merchandise, mining and milling machinery that goes to the Pacific northwest, and both committees were pleased to recommend passage.

For Constitutional Convention.

The assembly, by a vote of 60 to 32, adopted a resolution favoring a convention for revising the state constitution. The senate passed a bill requiring the vaccination of school children in case there is an epidemic of smallpox. Gov. Davidson appointed E. M. Tracy, of Milwaukee, state oil inspector, to succeed F. F. Mills, of Burlington.

Kander Bill Killed.

A good deal of time was devoted in the assembly to a discussion of the Kander bill abolishing liens of subcontractors on buildings. The bill was especially intended to compel contractors furnishing materials for buildings to look to building contractor for his pay and not give him a lien on the structure if the building contractor fails to pay him. Assemblyman Simon Kander, of Milwaukee, author of the bill made a strong fight for it, but failed.

Bill May Yet Be Passed.

The Milwaukee municipal icehouse bill, introduced by Assemblyman Harless and passed through the assembly, was given another chance, when action on a recommendation for non-concurrence was postponed, upon motion of Senator Kummel, and the same action was taken as to the Roehr bill.

Measures Laid Over.

Two spring shooting bills were on the house calendar for killing, but were laid over.

News Gathered Here and There at the National Capital

this he would not do.
 Personally the head of the Shonts household wants to see his daughter happily married, and, if he had any objections to the French nobleman, was willing to put them aside if Miss Shonts was satisfied with the duke.
 So, according to some of the wise ones, the match will never come off, as the duke is reported to "need the money," for while he is long on lineage and incumbered estates, he is short on cash.
 To all appearances the two young people are really in love. "But what can a duke and duchess do without sufficient means to keep up their end of the social game?" asks Washington Post. Still, some believe the young people may yet decide to marry without the settlement and take their chances on papa's determination not to rehabilitate the De Chaumais estates.
 While in New York the Misses Shonts will help their father in selecting a home for the family, to which they will move from here some time early in June.

THE real reason for the estrangement between Speaker Cannon, eight other members of the congressional party and the canal zone officials was not because of the quarantine regulations but because Speaker Cannon and his party did not believe they were properly treated.

When the steamship on which the Speaker and his party were arrived at Colon the men who are digging the canal and earling for the canal zone did not even send a rowboat out to meet them. The party boarded a train at Colon, going to Panama and after it had started and was nearing Culebra cut Speaker Cannon went strolling through the cañon ahead. In it he found Chief Engineer Stevens, who recognized him and talked with him a few minutes.

"Well, good-bye," the chief engineer said, waving his hand, as the train approached Culebra cut. "This is where I got off."

The congressional party headed by the speaker believed they had been so badly treated that they had the steward on the steamship prepare their luncheon for them. Each member of the party on the train carried a lunch box.

When the train pulled into Panama Superintendent Beard of the Panama Railroad company had prepared an elaborate luncheon for the members of the speaker's party. They went in the dining-room and ate the luncheon, and on leaving the table each member of the party left at his plate the customary price for a luncheon.

Superintendent Beard found the money on the table, and, as his guests had gone, sent it back to the steamship with a curt note that he was not authorized to collect money for the luncheon.

"The Panama commission may have gentlemen in its offices in Washington, but it certainly has none of them at work on the canal," the speaker is reported to have told Gov. Magoon.

WHITIE a presidential bee buzzing merrily in his bonnet, Vice President Fairbanks has entered on a social campaign that has made the whole capital rub its eyes in surprise and wonder at his extravagance.

Since the Fairbanks weather eye was fixed steadily on the White House the expenses of the family, it is said, have jumped from $30,000 to $100,000. Mrs. Fairbanks now is one of the most popular hostesses in Washington, and from the occasional receptions of two years ago has developed to two-formal affairs a week.

Formerly the Fairbankses lived in a modest house at Eighteenth and Massachusetts avenues, the rent of which was $3,000 a year. Then they had only five servants in all, and they were without a carriage, hiring a vehicle whenever needed. Now they pay $12,000 a year for the mansion of Col. Edward Morrell, of Philadelphia, and they have more than a dozen servants, with twice that total several days a week. Over the Fairbanks' kitchen now presides John Rook, the chef who was the joy of Levi Z. Leiter and his friends.

Rook has so much money to spend that he gains precedence in the market over Phineas, the buyer for the White House. Fairbanks has given his man a free hand to stock the pantry with the choicest luxuries, and just what this means may be gathered from the fact that at two receptions nearly 1,000 guests partook of a buffet supper at which trappin, every kind of shell fish and the finest imported wines were served. Lavishness is the keynote of the Fairbanks establishment, and to her regular entertainments Mrs. Fairbanks now has added frequent and large theater parties.

TO HAVE the people and the taxpayers of national and congressional campaigns paid from the national treasury by the different political parties, and to permit in presidential campaigns only a closely limited use of money other than that drawn from the public funds, is the striking project which the president has in his mind as a means of purifying national politics and preventing improper use of money drawn from improper sources.

There has been much doubt whether the scheme of publicity, after election, of campaign expenditures would be very effective. Practical politicians have protested that it is locking the barn after the horse is stolen.

It would be required, of course that all money should be carefully accounted for, vouchers should be made and carefully audited, and the purposes for which it could be used would be limited to speaking, literature and organization.

It is understood that the amount made available from the public treasury would be apportioned among the parties on some such basis as the relative votes polled at the last preceding national election. This would let in the small parties for their share.

Politicians regard the scheme as Utopian, but are not at all certain whether it could be defeated if seriously presented to congress by the president.

The president has not developed details of the plan, and may be convinced yet of its practicability, but he has asked of it with much interest, and is thus far disposed to re-

Politicians say that if the idea should be followed to its logical conclusions it would eventuate in nothing less than the creation of a great election board possessing unlimited opportunities for corruption.

Cable Aids Weather Reports.

The completion of the submarine cable under construction between Iceland and the Shetland Islands is expected to afford facilities for a great extension of the area covered by the existing system of weather prediction. Iceland in the winter thus occupies about the center of the Atlantic low pressure, or storm area, and the absence of telegraphic communication with that island hitherto has prevented the collection of information of great value to meteorology.

By utilizing the Iceland cable and the reports from the Central Physical observatory at St. Petersburg, covering the vast stretch of Siberia, the United States weather bureau hopes ereafter to possess a knowledge of the state of the atmosphere completely around the earth in the northern hemisphere, a fact of great importance in long-period weather forecasting.

Keeping on the Safe Side.

Caller.—I'd think that your father's duties as building inspector would be awfully dangerous, going around unsafe buildings.

Small Son of the House.—Oh, no; e doesn't go near 'em till after they're all down.—Life.

Wisconsin's senatorial deadlock is about as tight as it was at the start. The people of Wisconsin could have settled the question in one day.

About the only crop that hasn't been damaged this spring is the crop of stories concerning other queer springs that are remembered by the oldest inhabitants.

The senatorial situation at Madison has considerably changed. Leconte and Cooper have both withdrawn. As a result of the break up, Stevenson forced to the front yesterday, receiving twenty-six and new names are in the list of new candidates. The vote is as follows:
Cooper, 18; Esch, 21; Hatten, 10; Stephenson, 20; Baensch, 4; Winkler, 4; Bird, 10; Rummel, 5; Thompson, 1; Frear, 2; McGregor, 5; Hudnall, 2; Stout, 2.

A. H. Miner of Madison was a caller in the city Wednesday. Mr. Miner was editor of the Northwestern Mail until a few years ago and now publishes a quarterly The Congregational Convention Record.
Wm. Greenshield and family left this week for Ashland where they will make their home. Mr. Greenshield has lived in this city for 19 years and until recently owned a home on the West Side. He goes to Ashland to work for G. W. Meyer, a coal dealer. During his long residence in this city, he and his family have made many friends who regret their departure.
Paul Browne has just added another nest of safe deposit boxes to those he has had for several years past in his fire proof vault. The demand for these boxes has increased so rapidly that Mr. Browne has found it necessary to add to the supply. The annual rental is placed very low, in fact only about one-half that charged in other places. Few cities the size of Rhinelander afford a safe place for the storage and safe keeping of papers and valuables, and the citizens seem to appreciate this system and are not slow in taking advantage of it.
Word is received that Mrs. A. Kincaid who has been ill in a hospital at Portland, Oregon is much improved. Her many friends here wish her a speedy recovery.

A Narrow Escape.
G. W. Cloyd, a merchant of Plunk, Mo., had a narrow escape four years ago when he ran a Jimson bur into his thumb. He says: "The doctor wanted to amputate it but I would not consent. I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and that cured the dangerous wound." 25c at J. J. Reardon Druggist.

ARE YOU GOING ABROAD?
The following interesting article from the pen of one who has traveled extensively in all foreign countries, and therefore "one who knows," is quoted for the benefit of such of our readers as contemplate a trip abroad.
There is no time in one's life so replete with interesting and highly pleasurable incidents as that spent in traveling through the old world. The beautiful panoramas that hold one's vision while passing from village to village and the quaint sights in the cities, so different from our type, furnish food for recollections and descriptive stories for years after. One who has not been abroad cannot realize how his ideas of life are broadened and how much education he receives with a few months' or even a few weeks' contact with the people and the ways and manners of the European countries. I have traveled all over Europe several times during the past few years and each time find something new, something instructive and interesting, and strongly advise every American to spend a few months of his lifetime in the foreign countries, for pleasure as well as for education.
It is wise to visit the steamer a day or two before sailing and get the head steward to reserve you a seat at the table. Also see the deck steward and rent a steamer chair which will cost one dollar and will be of great use during the voyage. Do not forget to buy a warm steamer rug before going abroad for even in midsummer it is likely to be cold on the ocean. Ladies will find their gossamer comfortable during rainy or rough weather.
A full outfit of winter clothes, including undergarments, is necessary as a safeguard against the cold days. Men should take their light overcoat and warm gloves. For women a winter walking suit of dark color, a heavy cap, or blazer, stout walking shoes, thick gloves and a yachting cap or soft felt hat will be desirable. It is well also to take along a rain coat, rubbers or an umbrella. Rainy days in Scotland and elsewhere. A silk waist to wear at the Captain's dinner and on other occasions will be a comfort to the feminine heart. These and all other useful things for two persons can easily be packed into one steamer trunk, one large suitcase and one carryall. And, oh, yes! Don't forget your camera.
Baggage for Steamship Passengers should be distinctly marked with name of passenger, address, and number of steamer; also whether "wanted" or "not wanted" by passengers in the steamer. American Express Company's "Travelers' Cheques" will be furnished by the steamship companies upon application.
Twenty cubic feet of baggage (about 300 lbs.) is allowed each adult cabin passenger by the various steamship lines.
Hand baggage, if carried in compartment with the traveler, is transported free by almost all European Railroads.
Of course, the question of spending money is such a factor in the minds of people who are not millionaires, and next to having the money to spend it is important to know what arrangements to make to carry your funds while traveling without danger of loss or theft or overcharge in any country. I have found in all my years of travel that the best mode of carrying money in traveling abroad is in the shape of American Express Company's "Travelers' Cheques." These cheques can be purchased of any agent of the company or of your bank. The reason that I recommend them is that you have no trouble in getting your money, as they are accepted by all Banks, Merchants and Hotelkeepers, and the cheques show on the face just how much money you should get in any country in Europe. I have used them without the least trouble even in such remote and strange lands as Palestine, India and Japan.
The money of the different countries is not difficult to understand if one remembers simply that four English shillings or four German marks or five French francs or Italian lire are the equivalent of a dollar. Each of these coins resembles a silver "quarter" of our own money, while the six-pence and half franc look so much like a dime that they also seem familiar.
For rapid trip through Europe the guide book published by Baedeker is most useful. The American Express Company also publishes a valuable book entitled "Notes and Facts of Interest to Travelers," which they send free upon application, giving maps of principal cities, travel directions and cab fares in large cities, overland routes and fares, tables of foreign money, time-tables and other valuable information, which travelers should obtain before leaving this country. The American Express Company also maintains a Railway Ticket Department in London and Paris, where travelers can obtain at a reduction of about 20 per cent from regular fares, circular or Roundtrip tickets over all European railroads. I can recommend in every respect their service in this department.

BREWERS RESERVE RIGHT

Milwaukee Concerns Abolish Free Liquor to Minors in the Establishments That Are Directly Under Their Control.

Milwaukee.—No more beer will be given to boys and girls under age employed in Milwaukee breweries. An order to that effect was issued in the various establishments, notwithstanding that it was feared that a walkout on the part of the employees would result, as under the contract with the bottlers' union the breweries of Milwaukee had agreed to furnish beer to employees in the bottling department at stated times during the day. About 2,000 employees are affected by the new rule.

Credit for averting a walkout is given to William B. Rubin, Frank J. Weber and others, who addressed the bottlers and secured their assent to the proposition.

All of the breweries have discontinued giving beer to boys and girls. The brewery proprietors, however, were prepared to meet the walkout with men, and it was probably largely for this reason that the boys remained at work.

Beeny's Best Room

By Kathryn Jarboe

(Copyright, by Joseph H. Bowdoin.)

She was christened Verberna. By the time she was old enough to recognize her own name, it had degenerated to Beeny.

Mr. Lombard, with his acres to till and his cattle to feed, did not believe in love or affection. Mrs. Lombard paid little heed to the child.

At the age of 16 she was still going to school because she was less in the way there than she was at home.

It was late in the autumn when Verberna was 16 that the new teacher came to the school. The man's name was John Cox, and he was an uncompromising as the name. He was tall, long limbed and broad-shouldered, with every muscle tensed and rigid. He made but a short address to the school, and then he called the roll from the old list made by the old teacher.

"We will take a moment to change this," he said. "We will make a new roll, and as I call these names you will each step up to my desk."

"Heeny Lombard!" The firm voice hesitated, a puzzled look glanced across the stern eyes.

"Heeny Lombard!" Verberna rose slowly and moved to the edge of the platform.

"Are you Heeny Lombard? And what does Beeny stand for?"

"Why—why, Verberna."

"Verberna?"

"Yes, Verberna," she faltered. "Oh, Verberna!" He spoke quickly, almost curtly, and yet the voice that christened Verberna opened for her the way into a new world, a world that was all faith, all love, all adoration.

It was late that afternoon when Verberna reached home. If Mrs. Lombard had looked at her daughter she would have seen that the dreamy, listless eyes were wide awake; that the childish, open lips were closed, but closed in a smile that dimpled at the corners.

It was not easy to say. Verberna wanted the best room; she wanted the rooming up of the best room; she had brought the roses for the vase in the best room; all the girls she knew had the best room for—for their beaux.

"Hev it ef yo' want it," her mother laughingly answered. "Mind that yo' an' yer beaux don't hurt it though."

"I—I'll only have one beau," the words were whispered as Verberna crossed the kitchen.

On the calendar, the days that followed would have been called a month. In Verberna's mind they stood for all of life, for all time. In the school, order was being brought out of chaos. But she only worked at night, only in the late afternoons and early mornings. All through the school hours, her eyes never left the master's face, and all the while he seemed quite unconscious of the wistful eyes that followed him.

The morning that ended it all began just like other mornings of the month. Verberna was at her desk in the school some ten minutes before the first bell rang. John Cox, absorbed in the papers before him, had hardly noticed her entrance.

Suddenly there was a sound of running feet and a voice, big and deep with excitement, cried: "It's a reward for a murderer. An' they're going to put one on the schoolhouse, too. They think their feller's out here. An' he killed a man back east. He's named Jared Conklin and the sheriff'll be here today to look for him."

The words were being repeated now, back and forth. They were almost indistinguishable, but Verberna had heard them all once, and she had seen John Cox's white fingers close hard on the desk in front of him. Before he could make the slightest movement, her hand was on his. "I'll hide you where they'll never find you."

If he hesitated, Verberna did not know it. It was the girl who led the way in the shadows of the hedged that she knew so well, down close to the silent farmhouse. Subconsciously, she had remembered that her father and mother had gone that morning into town, but breathlessly she ordered the man to wait until she had been into the house, until she had unlocked the door of the best room, her room.

"I cannot stay here!"

"You can stay here and be safe until I can get you away. Promise me that you will stay."

"I promise," he answered.

It was Verberna who rang the morning bell at the school, some ten minutes late. It was true, but the boys and girls were all too excited to note the time. She listened to the wondering comments on the schoolmaster's absence. With the others she hurried out to read the notice when it was placed on the schoolhouse door. With the others she read the description of the murderer. She compared this description with their teacher. Her own heart echoed the conclusion as was whispered from the corner lips. John Cox and Jared Conklin were but one and the same man!

The search in that part of the country for Jared Conklin was only a matter of days. Then word came that he had been seen farther west, in Arizona, in California, and the sheriff concluded that his man had received warning and escaped again. But the days seemed interminable to the man who waited for freedom.

One night she came to him and told him that she was ready. Noislessly they left the house, Verberna leading him by the hand as though he were a child.

"Our horses are at the lower gate," she whispered.

"I am only going with you until you are safe. And I must be back before the day dawns."

"Must you go, Verberna?" "Yes; I must go with you. I told you that I must until you are safely out of this part of the country. There is no road, but I have been on this path every day for the last two weeks. I know it and the horses know it. There is no time to be lost. Come."

They were hardly in their saddles, but Verberna was already off. It seemed to him that they rode for hours. Then they began to climb ever so slightly, the pace to slacken ever so little.

At last she stopped and slid from the horse. "From here, your way is down," she said. "Give Jocko his head for ten minutes. By that time you'll strike the trail. A freight stage at Red Tank Sliding for water at 5:48."

Her voice broke. A quivering sob slipped from her lips. The man drew nearer to her, stretched his hands toward her, then clenched them fast together. Verberna! I did kill him, Verberna, but—

"Oh, I know it," she cried, impulsively. "But I wanted that you be honest with me; just with me!"

In another instant she was in his arms, clinging to him, sobbing convulsively.

"I've Paid More Than I Owed, Verberna."

He was holding her close. "Have faith in me, Verberna," he whispered. "Trust me! That's all that I can ask now."

Verberna did not answer in words, but she touched his lips with hers for just an instant and drew away from him. "You've barely time to catch that freight."

And so she hurried him off, and yet the words that he carried with him down the headlong slide of rocks were: "I do trust you; I do believe you."

It was a curious betrothal, perhaps, but Verberna never doubted for an instant that she was betrothed to John Cox. A few months later, she received a little sprig of verberna, enclosed in a blank sheet of paper. She did not know that it had grown in a prison yard, and she accepted it as a message that the waiting might be long.

There were many applicants for Verberna's hand freighted with the Lombard acres and cattle, but Verberna listened to none of them. She was simply waiting.

Twice the best room was opened for funerals, for Mrs. Lombard died soon after her husband. Then more years passed, and every day Verberna tended her sanctuary.

At last love came to her there. Just at nightfall, when Verberna was closing the house, she saw an unfamiliar figure coming toward her. And yet her heart had recognized it. Instead, she turned and unlocked the best room and threw the door wide open.

For was it not in the best room that all girls received their—their beaux?

"I've paid more than I owed, Verberna," he spoke slowly in the old, low voice. "It's a long story, Verberna."

"I don't want to hear it, John."

"Have you thought of me always as 'John Cox'?" he asked. "I was Jared Conklin, a murderer. It was a quarrel. I killed him in reality to save myself. If I had not run away, I might have got off, but when I went back—because I loved you—I had to pay the penalty of the law. And now I've paid it and overpaid it."

Verberna was looking at him closely, thinking how little he had changed since that first morning in the old schoolroom. Possibly her mind led him back there, for he said: "Do you remember that first morning at school? I wondered even then if I should ever be free to ask you to marry me. Now I am free, and you—you are just as adorable, just as sweet."

"That's what mother used to say," she whispered, "about that sweet green stuff in the garden. It might be survived and wilted—the years have been very long, John—but it would be just as sweet."

MAKES HIMSELF AT HOME.

Durglar Breaks Into House, Bathes, Sleeps and Then Robs.

Stanford, Conn.—After breaking into the home of two wealthy maiden sisters, the Misses Frances and Cornelia Smith and finding it untenanted, a burglar calmly took a sleep in one of their rooms before selecting the articles which he wished to steal.

He set the alarm clock for five o'clock. When he awoke he took a bath, ate a hearty breakfast and then commenced a leisurely inspection of the valuable articles in the house.

The Smith sisters are in the south, and when the caretaker found the broken window in the kitchen he ran to summon the police. While an officer was climbing through the broken window the burglar walked out of the front door with several hundred dollars' worth of booty and escaped in the direction of Greenwich unseen by the officer.

Sporting Gossip.

American sport with the season of 1907 at hand enters upon what promises to be a bumper year. Judging by last season's records, high-quality performances in almost every branch are assured; but best of all, from the democratic point of view, the athletes on diamond, track, field and river will outnumber those of, say, two years ago by probably two to one. This is accounted for by the remarkable revival of interest in track athletics, by the advent of the public school boy in almost every branch of sport, and by almost every branch of sport, and by the heavy schedules for the year, calculated to give everyone a chance, either individually or as a member of a team. All these things are signs of national health in sport. Stars of national health in sport. Stars of national health in sport. Stars of national health in sport.

The man drew nearer to her, stretched his hands toward her, then clenched them fast together. Verberna! I did kill him, Verberna, but—

Thomas Longboat, the Indian runner of Toronto, Canada, broke the record for the Boston Athletic association's 25-mile Marathon road race from Ashland to Boston, and defeated a field of 114 runners after the most closely contested race since the event was inaugurated in 1897. Longboat covered the distance in two hours 24 minutes 20.45 seconds, this being five minutes two and four-fifths seconds faster than the previous American record, which was established in 1901 by J. J. Caffrey of Hamilton, Ontario.

Robert Fowler, of the Cambridgeport Gymnasium association, finished second, also within the previous record. His time was two hours 27 minutes 54.45 seconds. John J. Hayes, St. Bartholomew's club, New York, was third in two hours 30 minutes 33.35 seconds. Following in order came John W. O'Mara, Cambridge; J. J. Lee, Roxbury; Charles E. Petch, Toronto; Sidney H. Hatch, Chicago; J. H. Nisley, Natick, Mass.; and John Liniquis, Brooklyn, N. Y., all finishing the time under two hours and 40 minutes.

King Edward is reported to have taken a hand in the financial trouble which threatened the Franco-British exhibition and the Olympic games to be held at Shepherd's Bush next year. Not long ago it was said that the project needed money, but owing to the influence of the king the idea soon of a quarter of a million pounds sterling has been raised and is now at the disposal of the undertaking. The plan for the Stadium has again been altered, and it will be twice the size of the one originally intended. It will afford accommodation for 303,000 persons. There will be 150,000 seats, one for the pedestrian events and the other for equestrian, and the middle event, which will be for the running, will be three laps to the mile. The swimming events, too, will be held in the Stadium, for on one side of the arena a bath 110 yards in length will be constructed, and in this pool all the events from 100 yards to a mile will be decided. The games will last over two weeks, and 25 nations have already signified their intention of participating in the meet. The final arrangement of the program and other minor details will shortly be made.

Dogs Prized as Edible in China Are Here Fashion's Pets.

"He is the real thing in the way of a Chow," said Mr. "Father" bought him for me in Shanghai. Did you know they ate them there?"

"I had heard that the Chinese ate dogs, but I thought it was a fake, like the story of their eating rats."

"No; it is the truth. They do eat dogs, but only the Chow variety. 'Chow,' you know, means 'edible.' Yes, they eat Chows. In every butcher shop you see Chows' carcasses hung up, the same as we hang up the carcasses of pigs. The flesh is white."

"White?"

"Yes; like real. The Chinese raise Chows for food and feed them only soft, watery stuff, mashed vegetables and bread and milk. No meat whatever. Hence the white flesh."

"Notice Wu's black tongue. Well, chow tongue is a Chinese delicacy. They make soup of it. But it is very expensive, like our turtle soup, and it is only eaten by the rich."

"Isn't it strange that a dog so fashionable with us should be only an article of food in China?"

IN WESTERN CANADA.

Delicate in the Old Home; Better Health in the New.

Churchbridge, Sask., December 1st, 1906.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir, I came to this country from the State of Wisconsin three years ago, and must say that I am greatly pleased with the outlook in this western country. For my own part I am entirely satisfied with the progress I have made since coming here. I have raised excellent crops of grain of all varieties. Last season my wheat averaged 23 bushels of wheat to the acre, oats 60 and barley 40.

We had a splendid garden this year, ripening successfully tomatoes, muskmelons, water melons, sweet corn and kindred sorts.

The country is well adapted to wheat growing and mixed farming, and to my mind it is the best country under the sun for a man with a family and small means, as it is possible for a man to commence farming operations with much less capital than is required in the older settled countries. The climate is all that could be desired, being very healthy and invigorating.

My wife came out about six months ago, and although inclined to be self-cared in the old home, she has enjoyed the best of health since coming here.

In short, I am more than satisfied with the land of my adoption, and I am also satisfied with the laws of the country.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) JOHN LANGDON.

"Automobiles do not trouble one's hair so!" said the beautiful young creature as they descended from the machine and started up the dark walk toward the house where they were to call.

"It does?" he inquired politely.

"Yes; it gives it the same effect as though one had been struggling to avoid being kissed," she gurgled.

"Indeed? I fancy you should carry a small hand-mirror and some hair-plugs when you go automobiling," he suggested, moving right on up the dark walk.

The Eternal Feminine.

The sons of men rule the world, but the daughters of men govern it through them. It is woman who founds society in its artificial aspects. It is woman who creates class distinctions and insists on maintaining them. It is woman who imbues man with desire to emulate, who instills into him social ambition that inevitably brings in its train the restless fever of acquisition, the madness of greed, the ambition for power through financial success. It is woman who is at once the social bulwark, the autocrat and the snob.—Woman's Life.

STUDENT MADE HIS POINT.

No Doubt the Policeman Understood What He Meant.

W. H. Mallock, the well-known English writer and political economist, said at a dinner in New York, apropos of a new definition of socialism: "I find that definition rather confusing. It reminds me of the young Oxford student's badinage with the policeman. 'Officer,' said the youth late one night, 'I'd like to ask you a question.' 'Very well, sir.' 'Does the law permit me to call you an ass?' 'You move on,' the officer growled. 'But stop a bit,' continued the youth. 'Does the law permit me to call an ass a policeman?' 'The law don't say nothing about that,' was the gruff reply. 'Then,' said the youth, 'good-night, Mr. Policeman.'"

Neighbors advised me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and before I had used half of the cake of Soap and Ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's face and body were as clear as a newborn babe's. We continued this treatment until several bottles were used, when our boy was completely cured." Best of all blood medicines and body building health tonics. Guaranteed at J. J. Relief From Rheumatic Pains.
"I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," says Mr. Roland Curry, a patrolman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometime it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was incapable for duty. One night when I was in severe pain and lame from it, I was in bed and the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by
